

The background of the cover is a painting of a rainy city street. The street is wet and reflects the light, with several figures walking in the distance. On the left, there are tall, multi-story buildings. The overall atmosphere is moody and atmospheric, typical of a rainy day in an urban setting.

WILLA CATHER

My Mortal
Enemy

LibriVox

In the Midwestern town of Parthia, Myra Henshawe was a legend. The grandniece and ward of Parthia's richest man, Myra had shocked the locals by sacrificing her inheritance to run off and marry her true love Oswald. Thirty-odd years later, the still feisty Myra, now enjoying a sophisticated life with Oswald in New York, takes Nellie, the teenage niece of her oldest friend, under her wing. From Myra, Nellie is introduced to not only the fineness of art and culture, but the mysterious ways of friendship and romance as well.

Read by: Amy Dunkleberger

Running time: 02:02:07

Cover Art: "Rainy Day" by Paul Cornoyer, circa 1905